HUTCH.
As Swallow, on Saturday, the 20th of August, 1891, the wife of JAMES PETERSTONHAUSE, Chinese Marine Customs, of a son. [1891]The Daily Press.
HONGKONG, SEPTEMBER 4th, 1891.The petition against the Share Sales Regulation Bill was sent home by yesterday's mail.
It occupies three columns and contains three arguments, which may be concisely stated in a few lines. The first is that the Bill will interfere with the business in share transacted between Hongkong and other places; the second, that it will be some trouble for a man to look in his ledger or safe to ascertain the numbers or marks of the shares he is about to sell; the third, that in the event of the bankruptcy of a seller on time there will be inconvenience in adjusting any subsequent transaction that may have taken place in relation to the same shares. There are a number of assertions and denials, advanced with the object of showing that the Bill is unnecessary and that it will not have the effect intended, but the above are the only actual arguments advanced against it.With respect to the first argument, namely, the probability of stoppage of business between Hongkong and other places, we will ask how the operation of the Bill can have that result. If it had, people in Hongkong would then receive the same protection that people in London receive from the London Stock Exchange. Only shares allotted in London are allowed to be dealt with in London. Therein consists the hardship on shareholders in China. London share holders can realise in China as well as in London, and no restrictions prevail abouttransferring London shares to the China register. Shares on the China register, unless previously on the London register, are not legal tender in London, while shares on the London register are legal tender in China, and by this much, unfortunately, Mr. Keswick's Bill fails to protect shareholders on the China register. If it affords them any inci-sion of protection it is in making sales of London shares in China a little more costly, as to comply with the provisions of the Ordinance, the number of the shares sold would have to be given, and this would cost in telegrams say $4 on fifty shares, or eight cents a share—or four cents a share on one hundred shares—if the shares were in consecutive numbers. While buyers or sellers of shares are willing to pay ten cents a share brokerage, or twenty cents on the transaction, we fear, that an additional four or eight cents a share will not stop them.
But in selling shares to arrive from London contracts would not pass; there would be no occasion for contracts to pass until the numbers of the shares were received by the mail. Mr. Keswick's Bill is not aimed at business for the settlement, or even at business forward; it is aimed at the system of forward short selling, over which there is no check such as is provided by the forthcoming settlements of the London Stock Exchange. If a man wanted to sell a "bear" or buy a "bull" with a near-settlement impending, he would exercise prudence.
A Frenchman giving the name of Desfort, but whose real name is said to be Eugene, was arrested yesterday morning at Amoy. He is Inspector Stanton on a charge of larceny and fraud within the jurisdiction of France. He was formally charged before Mr. Wise later in the day and the case remained.A dangerous competitor to the Nippon Yusen Kaisha Company on the Vladivostok line has appeared (says the Mercury) in the shape of a Russian Steamship Company which has already commenced to run the steamer Bizak to Shanghai and recently bought the well known Shanghai
